Webinar Recap: Leadership’s Role in Building an Informatics Roadmap

In this webinar, Secretary John Wiesman and Dr. Kathy Lofy of Washington State explained how and why they, as leaders, made informatics a priority for the Washington State Department of Health. The discussion outlined the major activities undertaken by the agency in the development of an informatics roadmap, such as establishing an informatics program and IT governance, conducting an informatics capacity assessment, and establishing short- and long-term goals. We’ve summarized a few key takeaways from their presentation to consider in your own informatics capacity building efforts.

Want more information? Click here to watch the full webinar.

Public Health Informatics for Leaders is a project of the Informatics Academy at the Public Health Informatics Institute and is made possible with funding from the de Beaumont Foundation.